ABSTRACT

This seminar will address the specific features of structural informality in Latin America, based on the ILO document "Innovative Approaches to Address Informality and Promote the Transition to Formality in Support of Decent Work" (113th International Labour Conference, June 2025). The discussion will highlight the differences between Latin American and European contexts, analyzing the contributions of workers, employers, and governments to the international debate on employment and formalization. The session will be in Spanish.
